

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Business Communications Solutions (BCS) is Named Semi-Finalist in Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year Awards

IRVINE, Calif., May 2, 2007—Business Communications Solutions (BCS), one of Orange County's fastest growing telecommunications products and service providers, has been selected as a semi-finalist in the 2007 Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year (EOY) Awards. Each year, the EOY program recognizes and applauds entrepreneurial leaders and visionaries.

CEO Afsaneh "Sunny" Rajab and President Reza Khorramian, the entrepreneurs who founded BCS, are co-semi-finalists.

BCS, which has achieved remarkable growth since its founding in 2004, provides small to medium businesses (SMBs) with an efficient, single-source contact for all telecommunications and data connectivity needs. An authorized dealer for AT&T, Cox Business Services, Toshiba, Nortel Networks and Interactive Intelligence, BCS provides telephone systems, voicemail, conferencing, headsets, music-on-hold, VoIP, networking and business consulting.

"Ernst & Young's EOY competition is certainly prestigious and we are honored and proud to be recognized among today's leading entrepreneurs here in Orange County," said Khorramian. "Our entire team at BCS is responsible for the growth we have achieved and we would like to thank them for all the hard work."

A top seller of telephone systems in Orange County, BCS has expanded to surrounding counties and national accounts. Since its inception three years ago, the company has grown revenues 100 percent and has more than tripled its staff. BCS plans to expand its e-commerce offerings and move corporate headquarters to a new location at the Irvine Spectrum later this year. The company's future business plans also include several new regional locations in areas such as the Inland Empire and Las Vegas.
