

Last Updated: July 1, 2015 02:00pm ET

Prepare Now for 2018 Accounting Rules

By Kelsi Maree Borland | Orange County

Commented(0)

Join 700+ peers and get the latest market intelligence from experts you can count on at RealShare ORANGE COUNTY on August 18.

Ellen Bartholemy: “People do need to work closely with their accountants on these new rules to see the impact that it is going to have.”

IRVINE, CA—Lessees need to start preparing now for the new lease accounting and revenue recognition changes that will likely go into effect in 2018, according to Ellen Bartholemy, director of accounting services at Hall & Co. She is referring to new accounting rules that were approved this year that will—once in effect—change the way lessees record lease payments. Bartholemy says that there are many people in the dark about the new standards, and that everyone should be working with their accountant to plan for the change.

“There are companies that aren’t considering these changes,” she tells GlobeSt.com. “People do need to work closely with their accountants on these new rules to see the impact that it is going to have. It is going to be very important to have an accountant that is well versed in real estate. They need to be starting now, even if it isn’t going to be effective until 2018. They really need to be thinking about how the leases that they are in now or that they are signing now are going to be affecting their balance sheets and their banking. There isn’t going to be an exception made for existing leases, so lessees really need to start planning for this.”

Bartholemy explains that one of the functions of these new rules will change the reporting for lessees. “Lessees are going to be required to record lease payments as a liability, and that is a huge change,” she adds. “Historically, the lease payments were a disclosure item in the financial statements; they weren’t recorded in the balance sheet. So, it will affect the equity in the company and it will affect their assets and liabilities.”

It isn’t only business owners that need to be aware of the changes, either. Lessees and owners/operators will also need to make changes. “Bankers need to understand this impact too. A lot of our clients have bank covenants or have to have a certain amount of net worth,” says Bartholemy. “This could potentially affect their net worth and the debt to equity ratios.”

July 1, 2015

To add more complexity, the IRS is also looking at how these rules will affect book taxes. This could mean that companies will have to file a change of accounting method, and according to Bartholomy, that is not something that companies can do on their own.

Kelsi Maree Borland is a freelance writer and editor living in Los Angeles. Her work has appeared in publications such as Travel +

Leisure, Angeleno and Riviera Orange County.

Bio | Email

Delivering today's top stories, buzz, commentary ... Throughout the day, visit the NEW GlobeSt.com for updates.

Connect With Us

Mobile Site

THE BUZZ

'If you build it, they will come' no longer works as a philosophy for developing a master plan, iStar's Steve Magee tells GlobeSt.com. Find out what's important to focus on in this EXCLUSIVE post-PCBC story, coming up on the San Diego page.

--Natalie Dolce

Get All The Buzz at GlobeSt.com

TODAY'S TOP STORIES

What Two Seasoned CEOs Have Learned

SAN DIEGO—The importance of aligning yourself with people whose values match yours and having an open mind were among the topics discussed by the New Home Co.'s Larry Webb and Woodside Homes' Joel Shine during PCBC.

Read More at GlobeSt.com

Is an Investment Slowdown a Good Thing?

LOS ANGELES—With so much capital in the market, a potential tapping of the breaks by investors could be a welcome change in the near future, said speakers at RealShare National Investment & Finance.

Read More

Prepare Now for 2018 Accounting Rules

IRVINE, CA—According to Ellen Bartholemy of Hall & Co., property owners need to start planning now for the new lease accounting and revenue recognition rules that will likely go into effect in 2018.

Read More

The California AM Alert is sponsored by McGladrey and Prudential Mortgage Capital Co.

PRUDENTIAL MORTGAGE CAPITAL COMPANY

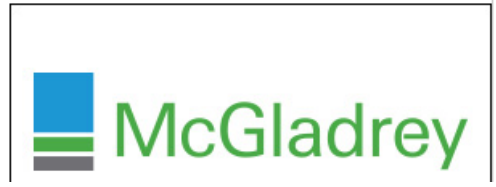

WE GET IT. DONE.

Multifamily loan programs include:

- Fannie Mae DUS™
- Freddie Mac Program Plus.
- FHA
- Freddie Mac Targeted Affordable
- Life Company loans
- Agency Gateway program
- Conduit

LEARN MORE

ABOUT OUR MULTIFAMILY LOAN PROGRAMS AND CAPABILITIES

Experience the power of being understood.®

Assurance ■ Tax ■ Consulting

Follow the intricacies of real estate deals

RealShare | BAY AREA

JULY 14, 2015

HYATT REGENCY SAN FRANCISCO