

Daily Pilot

By Daily Pilot staff

JULY 1, 2016, 1:18 PM

E verything was pink.

More than 100 breast cancer survivors and advocates lined up in bright shirts, tutus, beaded necklaces and hair extensions to create a huge human pink ribbon Thursday at the Newport Beach Civic Center.

The gathering was meant to rally support for the Sept. 25 Race for the Cure, presented by Susan G. Komen Orange County, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary.

The annual 5K run/walk, to be held in Newport Beach, raises funds for breast cancer treatment, services and education programs.

Photo Gallery: Breast cancer survivors, supports create human pink ribbon

Scott Smeltzer / Daily Pilot

Participants exchange a high-five during a celebration Thursday in Newport Beach of Susan G. Komen Orange County's 25th anniversary.

SEE MORE GALLERIES

Photo Gallery: Breast cancer survivors, supports create human pink ribbon

Scott Smeltzer / Daily Pilot

Amy Miley and her daughter Amanda cheer for participants forming a human pink ribbon for breast cancer awareness Thursday at the Newport Beach Civic Center.

SEE MORE GALLERIES

Photo Gallery: Breast cancer survivors, supports create human pink ribbon

(Scott Saultzer / Daily Pilot)

More than 100 breast cancer survivors and advocates gather on the lawn of the Newport Beach Civic Center on Thursday to form a human pink ribbon to celebrate 25 years of Susan G. Komen Orange County and raise awareness of September's Race for the Cure.

00 SEE MORE GALLERIES

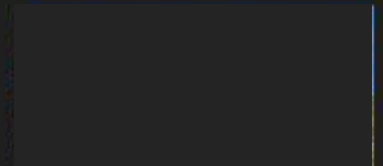

Photo Gallery: Breast cancer survivors, supports create human pink ribbon

(Scott Saultzer / Daily Pilot)

Monica Park, left, Bobbie Valentine and Kim Bortrick join other volunteers Thursday in Newport Beach for a celebration of Susan G. Komen Orange County's 25th anniversary.

00 SEE MORE GALLERIES

